Your natural secret for dull, thinning hair and split ends

Remember hearing the story of Samson in the Bible? When he lost his hair, he lost all of his power. In Native American culture, hair is thought to be an extension of the spirit. Historically, locks of hair were given to lovers as a token of affection or passed down as a family heirloom.

Hair is a significant part of our humanity, which is why problems with our hair can deeply disrupt our well-being. Would you agree?

No wonder there are so many products available in the market to help your hair grow, shine and thrive. Did you know that Castor Oil is known as a tried & true restorative tool for your hair, too?

So, you might be wondering, "how does Castor Oil help to grow hair?"

Well, to truly know if Castor Oil can help your locks, it's essential to first understand the common reasons for your hair problems.

Common causes for hair loss include:

1. Hormonal imbalance, thyroid problems, or menopause
2. Malnourishment or poor nutrient absorption
3. Stress, immune imbalances, or autoimmune disorders

Can you relate to any of these? You're in the right place.

So, how can Castor Oil help?

Castor Oil has been supporting hair throughout the centuries, from Greek Goddesses to Roman Empresses to Egyptian Queens.

Legend has it, Castor Oil was the beauty secret of the beautiful Queen Cleopatra herself! Amazing, right?

There's also mention of Castor Oil in the Bible as a divine healing and anointing oil.

Plus, it's full of hair-loving nutrients like polyphenols, omega fatty acids, and vitamin E! No wonder this oil has such a rich history.

Now, let's see what science has to say about Castor Oil, ready?

So, how can Castor Oil help?

You see, Castor Oil is full of hormone-balancing, hair-loving nutrients. It stimulates circulation, balances inflammation, moisturizes the scalp, and SO much more!

1. Supporting a healthy scalp microbiome

Micro...what? No, it's not gross- stay with me here.

The scalp microbiome is a community of simple organisms that grow on your scalp. Microbiome is a diverse mix of bacteria that work together to manage your scalp health (just like healthy bacteria in your gut). Makes sense, right?

If the delicate balance is thrown off, you can develop unfortunate scalp problems like flaking, itching, and irritation¹. Sound familiar?

2. Soothing scalp inflammation

Castor Oil comes from the castor bean, which is rich in ricinoleic acid—a type of fatty acid shown to soothe inflammation.²

Scalp inflammation can result in dryness and flaking. So, by preventing and soothing inflammation, Castor Oil may also reduce flaking.

Plus, Castor Oil is rich in various fatty acids that provide essential proteins and nutrients to hair follicles and prevent hair follicle inflammation.⁴ Amazing, agreed?

These nutrients and proteins bring us to the next benefit of Castor Oil all about how it can...

3. Nourish your hair

Castor Oil is also rich in antioxidants, which help neutralize the harmful effects of the oxidation caused by free radicals on your hair.¹

They also protect hair from ultraviolet rays and sun damage, promote hair growth, and manage frizz.

You see, lack of nutrients can slow down your hair growth and even cause hair loss. However, Castor Oil supports hair nutrition by...

4. Improving circulation to hair follicles

Applying Castor Oil on your scalp promotes nitric oxide, an antioxidant that supports blood circulation.^{4,5} Better blood flow combined with the penetrability of the fatty acids in Castor Oil may help deliver nourishment to the hair follicles.⁶ This means stronger strands and less breakage. Sounds wonderful, right?

Better circulation also means that the follicles don't weaken over time, promoting healthy hair growth.

Loving the benefits so far? Well, adding a Hair Wrap can help enhance the benefits of Castor Oil for your hair. Here's how it helps...

5. Supporting lymph drainage

Your lymphatic stem cells are grouped in clusters, surrounded by lymphatic vessels.⁷

Your hair follicles play a role in fluid drainage, and poor drainage may mean less tissue regeneration, and more issues with hair loss or thinning.

The gentle compression of the Castor Oil Hair Wrap helps support lymphatic drainage on the scalp, promoting healthy growth for your hair.

This means less worrying about hair loss, hair thinning, or managing split ends. Would you love that?

As an added bonus, Castor Oil promotes growth and thickness of eyebrows and eyelashes!
